

Site

Undeveloped

There is a large strangler fig (Ficus aurea) growing on top of one of the large boulders mixed with the catchment debris. There is scattered debris remaining from the catchment throughout the entire site.

There is an old Volkswagen wreck on the site and numerous rocks with remaining pieces of concrete from the catchment.

All areas of proposed site disturbance are within areas which have been hand cleared.

There small sapling trees slowly recolonizing and there are the remains of a structure which was used by squatters to grow plants. Rotting tarps and a wood platform are remnant of the growing areas.

There are vegetated areas around the fringe of the property which have not been handed cleared.
